Initial Election Overview

The Big Picture

- Republicans add at least 60 seats to control House (bigger wave than 1994). Now 239 R to 188 D (8 undecided).
- Democrats maintain control of Senate, but give up six seats. New partisan breakdown 51 D to 46 R to 2 Ind. (1 undecided).
- Republicans gain control of 8 additional governors mansions. New partisan breakdown 29 R to 16 D to 1 Ind. (4 undecided). Republicans now control 54 legislative chambers, Democrats have 38 and one is tied.
- Elected State Chiefs: AZ-John Huppenthal (R), CA-Tom Torlakson (D), ID-Tom Luna (R), OK- Janet Barresi (R), SC-Mick Zais (R), WY-Cindy Hill (R), GA-John Barge.

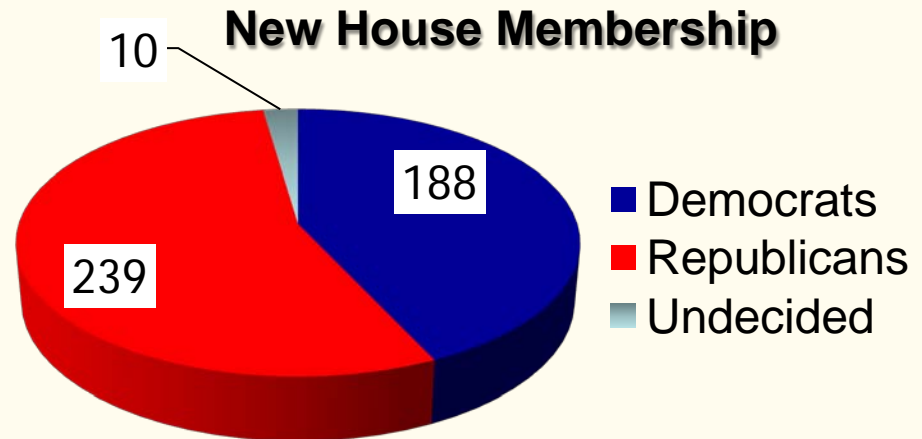

Select Races with Direct Education Implications

- Richard Blumenthal (D) replaces retiring early ed champion Senator Chris Dodd. As Connecticut's Attorney General he challenged NCLB's constitutionality.
- HELP Committee Member Lisa Murkowski-AK in a close undecided race, but leading. Senator Bennett-CO and Murray-WA prevailed in other close races.
- Iowa Governor Chet Culver, champion of statewide pre-k, defeated by former governor and Michele Rhee fan Terry Brandstadt.
- Dems win 2 of 3 special elections in the Senate where members seated immediately, helping (but not guaranteeing) prospects for budget omnibus this year (incl. ELCF).

House Election Results/Ed Impact

Education Policy Outlook:

- Early Ed: ELCF and new HS/CCDBG funding face obstacles in tough budget environment.
- K-12: ESEA on hold until Republican caucus consensus emerges and transition logistics completed, but remains important objective.
- Higher Ed: Intense for-profit scrutiny diminishes, but completion rate concerns linked to Pell/loans expand across higher ed.
- Budget: Future education budgets held flat, state/local bailouts end, and new programs unfunded.

Possible Republican Committee Leadership: John Kline (MN)/Ed & Labor and Denny Rehberg (MT)/Labor HHS Ed Appropriations. (Note: GOP Steering Committee to meet Nov. 17-18 to officially nominate committee chairs. Subcommittee chairs in January).

Possible Democratic Committee Leadership: Miller (CA)/Ed & Labor and Rosa DeLauro (CT)/Labor HHS Ed Appropriations.
